Autism Teachers Needed

Raleigh County Schools announces a collaboration with Bluefield State College to make available the Autism credential for teachers already holding a valid Special Education teaching certificate with no incurred fees!

If you are interested in furthering your education and acquire specific behavioral skills that can be applied across the education environments, join our AU Cohort 2020 and open the doors to understanding the complex and unique needs of students with Autism.

“1 in 60 students in Raleigh County have a diagnosis of ASD”
Allen Sexton, Director of Special Programs

Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) is among the most rapidly growing disability in Raleigh County. On average each of our 26 schools and ACT have no fewer than two students with autism needing support on a daily basis.
